BEFORE THE NEXT RAINY SEASON.

General H. G. Otis Thinks the War Can Be Ended, with More Troops.

CHICAGO, June 30.—General Harrison Gray Otis of Los Angeles, Cal., who was with the Eighth army corps at Manila and who saw nearly a year's fighting around that city, arrived in Chicago last night en route for Washington. General Otis discussed the situation in the Philippines and took the hopeful view that with the additional troops to be furnished the war will be terminated before the next rainy season sets in. "With 50,000 troops all told, say 30,000 for the fighting columns and 20,000 for garrison duty," he said, "Major General Otis can suppress the revolt before the next rainy season and restore peace."

"In the present state I do not believe the Filipinos are capable of self-government. If the restraint and control of this government were withdrawn from them now I believe they would be at each others' throats in a very short time and make a farce of self-government. The conclusion from this premise, therefore, is that it will be necessary for the United States to maintain a considerable force in the islands for an indefinite period. Such a course will, in my judgment, be unavoidable if we are to hold the possessions.

This country owes much to itself, and it owes the distinct obligation of providing a sound, adequate and just government to the natives of the Philippine islands. Moreover, it owes something to the world in this regard, for it would be a shame and a reproach to an enlightened nation to conquer and possess a half-civilized land and then abandon it without adequate governmental protection and international security."

Transport Valencia Sails.

San Francisco, June 29. Adjutant General, Washington:

Transport Valencia left last evening, with headquarters band, Troops B and M, Tenth cavalry, seven officers, 195 men, 200 rounds carbine, 120 pistol ammunition per man; Companies E and H, Twenty-fifth infantry, three officers, 253 men, 200 rounds rifle ammunition per man; one assistant surgeon, one acting assistant surgeon, six men hospital corps.

M. A. SHAFTER,
Commanding.

Escaped from a New York Police Station.

NEW YORK, June 30.—Joseph Harris, a negro, who last night shot and probably fatally wounded Hans Hogan, another colored man, escaped this morning from a cell in the East One Hundred and Twenty-Sixth street police station, through holes that had been made in the wall of the station house, which is undergoing repairs. Hogan was shot three times, and is not expected to live.

Tod Sloan Assault Case Settled.

LONDON, June 30.—The Star today says the Tod Sloan assault case has been finally settled by the payment to the waiter of the sum of $1,000.

THE COBURG THRONE.

The Duke of Connaught Resigns His Claim to the Duke of Albany.

COBURG, June 30.—It is officially announced today that the Duke of Connaught, brother of the reigning Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, and the son of the Duke of Connaught, Prince Arthur, have renounced their claims to the Coburg succession in favor of the Duke of Albany, son of the late Prince Leopold of England. The Duke of Albany, who was born in 1881 and whose mother was Princess Helena of Waldeck, will be heir to the throne of Coburg, under the guardianship of Prince Hohenlohe-Langenburg.

The Duke of Connaught's son reserves the right to the succession in the event of the death of the Duke of Albany or the extinction of the latter's male line.

The Duke of Albany will immediately come to Coburg and receive a German education, previous to entering the German army.

REFERRED BACK TO GOVERNMENTS.

Russian Proposals Against Increase of Military Budgets.

THE HAGUE, June 30.—The first committee of the peace conference discussed today the reports of the war and marine sub-committees on the Russian proposals not to increase the effective or military budgets. The recommendation of the sub-committees, that the proposals be referred for ulterior decision to the governments, was adopted.

Opening Concert of the Saengerbund Jubilee.

CINCINNATI, June 30.—The opening concert of the German jubilee of the North American Saengerbund passed off successfully last night and there are double programs for today and tomorrow. After the concerts this afternoon and evening and tomorrow afternoon and evening, the great Volkeufest will be held at the zoological gardens all day Sunday and Sunday night, instead of Saturday, as originally announced.

Canadian Dragoons to Celebrate the Fourth at Rochester.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 30.—The Fourth of July celebration executive committee has just received a communication from the commanding officer of "A" squadron, dragoons, of Colborne, Ont., stating that that body, consisting of 50 mounted men, will arrive via steamer at Charlotte Monday morning, July 3, at 9 o'clock, to participate in the grand celebration in Rochester on the following day.

THE ALASKAN BOUNDARY.

Another Crisis in the Pending Negotiations.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—The negotiations in London looking to the arrangement of a modus vivendi fixing the Alaskan boundary have again nearly reached a crisis. The conferences that have taken place recently between Lord Salisbury and Ambassador Choate have been signally disappointing in results. Also it appeared that a basis of understanding having, as it was thought, been reached, the details could be easily arranged, but it now turns out that these very details cannot be agreed upon without the sacrifice of the interests of many American miners, mainly those who were driven out of the Atlin district by the severe and discriminating laws enacted by the legislature of British Columbia, and this the State Department is determined not to sanction. The United States ambassador has come to the end of the concessions he is authorized to offer, and therefore the prospect of a successful outcome of the negotiations is rather depressing. Meanwhile nothing is said on either side of a reconvention of the joint high commission at Quebec although the date set for the meeting at the last adjournment is rapidly approaching.

IN THE BRUSSELS RIOTS.

One Hundred Persons Injured, Eight of Them Seriously.

BRUSSELS, June 30.—The rioting here was continued until 2 a. m. at various points. The gendarmes charged fiercely several times on the Boulevard Anspach and used ball cartridges on the grand palace. One rioter was bayoneted and two reporters were seriously injured. Sauerkraut and other domestic implements were thrown from windows during the night at the troops.

The Gazette says 100 persons have been injured during the rioting and that of this number eight were seriously wounded.

At the opening of the Chamber of Deputies today a motion was introduced amending the rules so as to allow the expulsion of any deputy causing a disturbance. The Socialists vigorously protested and violently anathemized the movers. M. Delantsheere defended the proposal and delivered a caustic indictment of the Socialists, who interrupted him by whistling, hooting and banging their desks.

RUSH FOR COMMISSIONS.

Preference to be Given Volunteer and Regular Officers.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—Since the announcement that about 10,000 volunteers are to be mustered into the army for service in the Philippines the President has been deluged with applications for commissions. Almost every Congressional caller has one or more applicants whom he presses upon the President's attention. The President requests all his visitors to file their applications with Adjutant General Corbin. At the same time he makes it clear in a general way that the policy of the administration in granting commissions will be to give preference to volunteer officers who showed ability and who performed valuable service during the Spanish war. Some regular officers are also to be given volunteer commissions, in the belief that one or two regular officers in a regiment will be of great advantage. The number of officers to be commissioned is being carefully guarded to prevent a scramble.

General Wood to Return to Santiago Next Week.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—General Wood has declined the presidency of the Washington Traction and Electric Company of this city and will return early next week to his post as military governor of the province of Santiago.

Mrs. McKinley Not Seriously Ill.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—Mrs. McKinley continues to improve slowly and today received General and Mrs. Wood. General Wood was Mrs. McKinley's physician before the Spanish-American war. There is no truth in the stories that Mrs. McKinley is seriously ill and that the President has abandoned all his summer plans in consequence.

Cession of Pacific Islands to Germany Completed.

MADRID, June 30.—The treaty confirming the agreement of February 12, ceding the Caroline, Pelew and Marianne islands to Germany, and the declaration granting Germany the most favored nation treatment from July 1, were signed today by Premier Silvela and the German ambassador here, Count Von Radowitz.

All Quiet at Samoa.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 30.—Steamship Mariposa arrived from Australia, via Samoa and Honolulu today, and reports everything quiet in the Samoan islands.

Called to the Rectorship of Grace Church, New Bedford.

NEW YORK, June 30.—Rev. Leslie E. Larned, pastor of St. Bartholomew's parish house in this city, has been called to the rectorship of Grace Church, New Bedford, Mass. Mr. Larned has occupied his present position, as one of the assistants of Rev. D. H. Greer, D. D., not quite two years. Before coming to New York he was rector of St. James Church, Fall River.

CRUISER CHICAGO AT DELAGOA BAY.

Will Remain to Protect American Interests in the Transvaal.

LOURENCO MARQUES, Delagoa Bay, June 30.—United States cruiser Chicago, Rear Admiral Howison's flagship, has arrived here. Her commander will proceed to Pretoria.

The Chicago sailed from New York in April last to circumnavigate Africa, but owing to the unsettled state of affairs in the Transvaal is to remain in that vicinity to protect American interests there.

GETTING TOGETHER.

Satisfactory Arrangement Between England and the Transvaal.

LONDON, June 30.—The Digger News, the Boer organ in London, prints a despatch from Johannesburg today, announcing on reliable authority that the Volksraad will be asked Monday to confirm an arrangement, made by the executive council, acceptable to the British high commissioner, Sir Alfred Milner, and the British government.

NEVER WENT TO SIBERIA.

Story of Americans Perishing of Cold and Hunger Denied.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 30.—A story has been circulated that a party of miners who left Nevada City some months ago to prospect in the north had perished of cold and hunger on the wilds of Siberia. Mrs. Norvall Douglass of this city, whose son is one of the members of the party, states emphatically that there is no truth in the story. "The party never went to Siberia, nor had any intention of going there," said she. "As a matter of fact, they are now camped 300 miles beyond Arctic City, with enough provisions to last through another season if necessary."

AT NEW ROCHELLE.

NEW YORK, June 30.—The new cup defender Columbia dropped anchor in the Sound just off the New Rochelle Yacht Club House this morning. The yacht has come into New York waters to prepare for the races which are expected to prove her fitness to race with the cup challenger Shamrock. As she lay at anchor this morning the Columbia attracted much attention and the shore has been lined continually with admiring spectators.

TALKING IT OVER.

Lease of the Boston & Albany Likely to be Effected.

NEW YORK, June 30.—The directors of the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad Company met here today at the Grand Central station. The interest attached to the meeting was centered in the rumored proposition for the lease by the New York Central of the Boston & Albany railroad.

William Bliss, who is president of the Boston & Albany and also a director of the New York Central, was among the first to arrive. He was said to have a conference with President S. R. Calloway of the New York Central prior to the meeting, which was an executive one. Besides these two gentlemen there were present Frederick W. Vanderbilt, William K. Vanderbilt, J. Pierpont Morgan, William Twombly and E. V. Rossiter.

When a recess was taken for luncheon it was stated that President Calloway would, later in the day, give out something for publication. It was said that the proposition to lease the Boston & Albany was favorably discussed in the morning session, but it was surmised that no definite conclusion had yet been reached by the directors.

LIVE STOCK CENSUS.

DENVER, Col., June 30.—The monthly bulletin of the National Live Stock Association states that the prospects for having a thorough and classified census of the live stock of the country taken next year are brighter than at any time in the past. Replying to resolutions passed by the live stock association, and an accompanying letter, which were sent him, Secretary James Wilson of the Department of Agriculture says that a census of domestic animals has never been taken, but that he will open correspondence with Governor Merriam, director of the census, to see if it is not possible to put in charge of agriculture in the census some one who has some conception of agriculture. The Secretary promises to make every effort to that end.

ORGANIZING THEIR FORCES.

Chicago Stockyard Men Expect a General Strike.

CHICAGO, June 30.—Labor is rapidly organizing at the stock yards in anticipation of a general strike July 1. The leaders of the dissatisfied employes claim they are finding no trouble in uniting their forces. The labor organizations will be perfected whether a general strike is ordered or not, as the employes of the big packing companies say that heretofore none of their requests have carried weight with the bosses, because stock yard labor lacked unity. The packers are claiming that the present difficulty is practically over, and that there will be no general strike in July. The strikers who still refuse to return to work say they will have the sympathy of the employed workmen, and unless all their demands are granted there will be a complete tie-up in the packing districts.

ANXIOUS TO LEAVE.

Prospectors in the Kotzebue Sound Country Find No Gold.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 30.—Dr. J. K. Stone, formerly a prominent San Francisco physician, writes from Kowak river, Alaska, that the reports stating that the Kotzebue Sound country is the richest gold field in Alaska are totally without foundation. He says 1,500 men paid $200 each passage money, but none of them have ever found gold in paying quantities. About half the men have returned to civilization and the remainder will do so if opportunity offers. He says not 50 of the remainder have means to leave there, and unless the government sends a vessel for them many must die of cold or starvation, as the country produces nothing to sustain life.

FORTIFYING THE ISLANDS.

Filipinos Outside of Luzon Preparing to Resist Attack.

VICTORIA, B. C., June 29.—Advices from Hakodate state that Captain Sakichi of steamer Hokoku Maru, just returned from the Philippines, reports that in the southern islands the young Filipinos are constructing fortifications against emergencies.

Every port is garrisoned by a thousand or so volunteers whose weapons, however, are very crude, only about 20 per cent being armed with rifles. They are, however, full of patriotism, and state that they will not yield to the Americans though the whole of the islands are destroyed.

The Hokoku Maru was warmly welcomed by the Filipinos, who considered the Japanese to be of a kindred race, and hope for assistance from them. The Filipinos were prepared to pay for arms and ammunition, and said the Japanese vessels visiting the islands could take return cargoes of hemp.

Captain Sakichi says he only sold the insurgents two revolvers and the cook's knives.

FIGHTING IN THE STREETS.

Rioting in Brussels Continued with Serious Results.

BRUSSELS, June 29.—At the conclusion of a great meeting in the town hall this evening, thousands attempted to cross the Grande Place, in which the town hall stands. The gendarmes were fired on both sides. Three persons charged with drawn swords, and the crowd retaliated with stones. Shots were wounded, and a police officer was severely stabbed with a shoemaker's knife.

The rioters, on being dispersed, assembled at another point. A large crowd gathered in the rue Royale, tearing up the paving stones and using them as missiles. Finally, the civic guard was ordered out to relieve the police.

Despite these attempts to suppress the disturbances, rioting continued to a late hour, many persons being injured. A tramway conductor received two bullet wounds. Ultimately, the troops were called out. About 35 arrests were made, many of those who were taken into custody being in possession of revolvers. The public prosecutor, with his entire staff, remains on permanent duty at the Hotel de Ville.

It is rumored that one man who was wounded has since died at the hospital.

CRIMSON EVERYWHERE.

Harvard Wins All Three Races at New London.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 29.—They are singing "Glory to the Crimson" in New London tonight, for Harvard's cup of joy is full to the brim and flowing over on account of the remarkable performance of the Cambridge oarsmen on the Thames. Harvard was a three-time winner, and clearly asserted her superiority over Yale in every event.

As a prelude to the big race the Harvard 'varsity substitute four romped away from the Yale four, winning easily by eight lengths.

No sooner was the race between the fours over than the Freshmen crews had their inning, and in this event the Harvard youngsters won by excellent generalship in the last half-mile of the race, coming to the wire like a thoroughbred in the stretch, snapping the lead away from Yale and winning by two lengths in a hair raising finish.

Then came the big race, the event that Harvard wanted to win more than any other. Not for eight years has the Harvard 'varsity shown its rudder to Yale, but after the first mile was rowed the crimson rudder was clear of the bow of the Yale shell and the distance increased until at the finish Harvard won by 5½ lengths.

These three victories placed the crimson of Harvard waving triumphantly over the blue of Yale, and in old New London tonight all that the eye can behold is crimson, crimson everywhere; all that the ear hears over and above the din and confusion of the celebrating students marching up and down the streets is Harvard. The official time of the three races is as follows:

'VARSITY.	m. s.	FRESHMEN.	m. s.	FOURS.	m. s.
Harvard	20 52¾	Harvard	9 33¾	Harvard	10 51
Yale	21 13	Yale	9 40	Yale	11 08

The performance of Harvard today is an achievement unparalleled in the history of college aquatics. It is a new record, winning three victories in one day; it is a feat never before accomplished, arranging three races for one regatta and making a clean sweep of them all, besides establishing a new record over the Thames course in a two-mile Freshman race, the crimson youngsters lowering the previous time of 9m. 41s., made by Columbia in 1891, to 9m. 33¾s.

The conditions were all that could be wished for, as, with the course down stream, all the crews had wind and tide with them, and the water was ideal for racing. There was no marked advantage in either of the courses down the river, as in the Freshman and four races Harvard had the east course, and in the 'varsity Harvard had the west course.

To Mr. E. C. Storrow belongs the credit of Harvard's 'varsity win. He has been subject to much adverse criticism for the way he went about his task. He is a student of rowing and his ideas were radically different from those employed by former Harvard coaches. Mr. Storrow started out to get the very best speed-producing material he could find at Harvard. Every one of the men who sat in the Harvard boats today was a racing man; their end was not to row for appearance, but to get speed. The men know how to race, liked racing and were fit for it.

NOT A CANDIDATE.

Roosevelt Favors the Re-nomination of McKinley.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 29.—Governor Roosevelt, who stopped off in this city late this afternoon for a few minutes, on his way from the West to New York city, declared that he is not a candidate for the Republican nomination for President in 1900, and that he is in favor of a re-nomination of President McKinley.

"I have had an exceedingly good time, and have thoroughly enjoyed myself," he said. "I have been as much touched as surprised. I have been delighted with the West.

"Everybody in the West is for McKinley's re-nomination, and I am most emphatically for his re-nomination, of course. I feel that both the extreme rapidity with which the country has gone up the path of prosperity under President McKinley's administration and the conduct of the war in the Philippines make it the duty of every man to stand with it, and renders President McKinley's re-nomination a necessity. We must smash out this insurrection there by force of arms, and then we can consider terms of peace."

GOVERNOR ROOSEVELT'S OUTLOOK.

The reception of Governor Roosevelt by the people of the Western states through which he has been traveling is attracting much attention, from Michigan to the Berkshires. If the governor were the ordinary ambitious politician, the President might well regard his going to and fro in the land with suspicion and resentment, but also with perfect equanimity, for to the ordinary ambitious politician the pace would be fatal. Governor Roosevelt's future cannot be read by the history of those who in times past have gained or striven to gain popularity, and as they neared the goal have found themselves exhausted and defeated. Like each of those whose careers have ended thus, he is a politician, and unless we greatly misjudge him, he is ambitious. But he both pursues and wears the laurels of political life "with a difference."

Wherein lies the difference may be traced roughly by considering first the more improbable of the possibilities of the future—that he should be preferred by his party for the Presidential nomination next year. Certainly this is highly improbable, but merely to mention it suggests the difference between him and other Presidential aspirants, and particularly between him and the actual President. If Mr. McKinley should fail of renomination, it would be because his party found him deficient in energy, in the power of firm and comprehensive decision of broad and difficult questions—in a word, in the faculty of leadership. And if Governor Roosevelt were to be taken, it would be because he is believed, perhaps too readily, to possess this quality. It would be only a great crisis that would induce party managers to make such a revolutionary change of plan, but if the crisis occurred they might well say to themselves: "Here is a man who would not have dallied with the party pledges as to the currency, would not have shocked the best sentiment of the country by the 'backward step' in reform, could not have tolerated Algerism, and would have measured his task in the East fully, stated it to the country frankly, and have called without hesitation for the means to meet it." In a word, Governor Roosevelt, more than any other man in his party, would in such a crisis appeal to the sentiment and to the judgment of the country as a man of action with an extraordinarily high standard of conduct, a man at once of courage and conscience and practical sense.

As we have said, the occurrence of such a crisis as would make the renomination of the President impracticable, though it is conceivably possible, is extremely improbable. The chances of Governor Roosevelt becoming a candidate for the Presidency are more to be considered with reference to 1904, and there is plenty of evidence that they are being so considered. The first judgment of the politicians and of the students of political history is, naturally, that in five years a candidate may easily "play out." It is a not unnatural impression, also, that Governor Roosevelt is peculiarly liable to such a fate. He is tremendously active; he is in many ways brilliant: he has won warm admiration by a brief and dashing military experience, and, especially, he is a constant talker. The chances, calculated on the past, are that a man with these elements of popularity will lack staying power, and on the surface Governor Roosevelt is fairly open to such an estimate of his future. But if we look a little closer—and all of us, including the politicians, may be forced to look closer—we shall see that there are other elements in the problem which tend to offset these. It is even a reasonable proposition that the governor's popularity or, more accurately, his hold upon the confidence of the people—is not so much because of these elements as in spite of them and because of quite different ones. If he is active, he is generally doing something worth while. In his short military career what was really the most important was not his courage or even his conduct in battle, which were no finer than those of many others, but his sure judgment of what was needed to make a volunteer regiment as good as a regiment of regulars, and the firmness, energy and fidelity with which he acted on that judgment under conditions of great difficulty. If in talking he is "instant in season, out of season," and if he says a good many things not too well worth saying, he says very many that are sagacious, honest, pointed and inspiring. Even his "preaching," if we may call it so, which often seems to us rather vague and unnecessary, always bears marks of sincerity, and the closer he gets to a definite fact, with a definite responsibility, the more likely he is to say something worth remembering and acting on.

In a word, there is much substance in Governor Roosevelt. If he should be re-elected governor of New York, the close of his second term would bring him to the eve of the Presidential election. Many things may happen in that time, and prediction would be foolish. But it would be more foolish to predict that his hold on the people will diminish than to expect that it will strengthen. If he relied on the arts of the politician, there would be little to hope for for him. But does he? What do the politicians themselves think?—[New York Times.

AROUND RHODE ISLAND.

It was discovered Wednesday that an attempt had been made to blow open the safe in the office of the Moshassuck Ice Company in Central Falls. Two holes had been drilled in the safe near the lock, one of them being about half an inch deep. There had been no attempt made to blow open the door of the safe, and it is supposed that the burglars either abandoned their task or were frightened away. The attempt to commit the burglary took place between Saturday evening and Wednesday morning.

Six of the molders who went out on strike at the Phenix Iron Foundry April 29 returned yesterday morning, having been ordered back by the union. The others are to come back this morning. The men were ordered in again on the ground that no grievance existed in this foundry, and there was therefore no cause for a strike. The matter has been left, it is said on behalf of the strikers, with the National Foundrymen's Association.

Paulette Dubee, a boy of 10 years, was drowned while bathing in the Pawtuxet at Riverpoint yesterday afternoon. The accident occurred about 3:30 o'clock, but it was nearly 6 before the body was recovered.

About 11 p. m. Wednesday as Fred Baker, station agent at Moosup, was leaving the station after his day's work he was hit on the shoulder with a sandbag. The blow was evidently intended for his head, but in the darkness of the night the robber missed his aim. Mr. Baker shouted and was heard by people from the hotel, which is a few feet in the rear of the depot. They immediately came to his assistance, but not until a second blow had been dealt, which rendered him insensible. The robbers were frightened and fled down the track. The motive was evidently robbery, it being the last of the month and at the time he was making up his accounts. In this they were thwarted by the timely assistance of help from the hotel. Mr. Baker was taken home and has not been able to leave his bed since.

An earthquake shock was distinctly felt and remarked by at least one family on Fruit hill Monday evening, although but one of the family had a correct idea of the cause of the heavy rumbling, which was strong enough to very perceptibly jar the house. The sound was like that made by the passing of a very heavy team or that of distant thunder, and to these causes the disturbance was attributed by all the family save one, who said it was just like an earthquake shock she had once experienced.

The Rhode Island Society of the Sons of the American Revolution will celebrate Independence day this year in the old-fashioned style. It will hold patriotic exercises at the First Baptist Meeting House, Providence, consisting of prayer by the chaplain of the society, Rev. Frederic Denison, reading of the Declaration of Independence by John P. Farnsworth and an oration by Hon. George H. Utter, ex-secretary of state. The president of the society, Robert P. Brown, will preside. Numerous guests have been invited, including the governor and his staff, state officers, the mayor and city council of Providence, the Daughters of the American Revolution in the state, and the Rhode Island Society, Sons of the Revolution.

NAVAL UNIFORMS.

Officers Required to Provide Eight Distinct Changes.

Secretary Long has issued the regulations governing the uniform to be worn by Admiral Dewey and other commanders and warrant officers and enlisted men of the navy. Eight distinct uniforms are provided for officers. The first, a "special full dress," is to be worn on occasions of special ceremony and at general muster on the first Sunday of every month. The second is the "full dress" uniform, which is to be worn on occasions of ceremony, as in making the first visit in each port to officers of flag rank. The third uniform, or "dress," is to be worn on all occasions of ordinary ceremony, in boarding ships of war, making the first visit in port to commanding officers, on parades of ceremony with enlisted men under arms, and at Sunday inspections, except on the first Sunday in the month. "Undress A," the fourth variation, is to be worn when reporting for duty, serving on courts or boards, except boards of survey, or on such other occasions as may be prescribed by the commanding officer. The fifth uniform differs from the fourth in omitting the sword and sword belt. It is to be used when calling on foreign officers other than commanding officers, and on social occasions, when frock coats are appropriate. The service dress is to be worn at all times not already provided for.

There are two kinds of evening dress, the first to be worn in the evening on occasions of ceremony to which officers are invited in their official capacity, and the second to be worn on social occasions to which officers are invited in their official capacity.

To insure the wearing of the several uniforms, a regulation provides that "Immediately after a vessel is commissioned, and before proceeding to sea, the commanding officer shall ascertain and report to the department whether any officer under his command is unprovided with his complete naval uniform and equipment."

Besides the uniforms thus prescribed, officers are required to buy white service coats, white trousers, white helmets and white cap covers, overcoats, cloaks and certain defined kinds of shirts, cravats, shoes and collars, the height of which is not stated. The coats and trousers are to be alike for all commissioned officers.

Admiral Dewey's rank will be distinguished by "two stripes of two-inch gold lace, with one one-inch stripe between, set one-quarter of an inch apart," which will be placed on his special full dress, frock, blue service and evening dress coats. "He shall wear two gold bullion epaulets, the strap of which will be two and three-quarters wide and six inches long: frog, four and three-quarter inches wide; crescent, eleven-sixteenths of an inch in the broadest part; mullion, three and one-half inches long and five-eighths of an inch in diameter." The shoulder-straps for the admiral will be "four and seven-eighths inches long and one and five-eighths inches wide, including the border, which is to be a quarter of an inch wide, embroidered in dead gold, the centre to be of dark navy blue cloth."

The admiral's epaulets will be embroidered with four silver stars of five rays each, placed an equal distance from each other in the middle of the strap or frog of the epaulet, with a gold foul anchor one and one-eighth inches long under each of the two outer stars.

The shoulder-marks for the admiral and rear admiral and commodore will have the top covered with two inches of good lace, showing a margin of one-eighth of an inch of blue cloth for line officers and other colored cloth for staff officers of corresponding rank, and will have worked over the gold lace the same devices as on the shoulder-straps.

The collar device for the admiral will consist of four silver stars, with a gold foul anchor under each of the outer stars. He will wear a rigid cocked hat on occasions of ceremony, made of black silk beaver, with a strip of two-inch gold lace, to be laid on flat, around the outer rims of the fans, passing under the peak. He will wear the same cap and cap device as other officers. His sword belt will be of dark navy blue cloth, embroidered on the edge with a gold stripe half an inch wide, and in the centre with one of half that width. The sling straps will be of dark navy blue cloth, embroidered on each edge with a gold stripe a quarter of an inch wide, and in the centre with one of half that width.

The new regulations prescribe the uniform for chief boatswains, chief carpenters and chief sailmakers, who are now commissioned by the President. They will wear the same special full dress uniform prescribed for warrant officers, mates and clerks, which uniform they will also use as "full dress," "dress," "undress A" and "undress B."

PORTSMOUTH.

[Regular correspondence of the News.]

Rev. Edwin J. Lord, who has been preaching in New York state for some weeks, has finished his engagement and returned home.

There was a very large crowd at Island Park last evening and the cars were correspondingly crowded.

Miss Delia Rees and Miss Annie B. Macomber attended Wednesday the national conference of the Society of Friends in Providence.

Mrs. S. G. Arnold and family have arrived at "Lazy Lawn" for the summer.

Not all readers of the Daily News are aware that the towns of the entire First Congressional district of Rhode Island are, through the persistent efforts of Congressman Bull, soon to enjoy the benefits of rural free delivery. This is the first instance where a Congressman has had his full district accepted. January 2 last the four routes on this island were started, and several times since have been inspected by special agents of the Postoffice Department. Rural free delivery is proving of great benefit to the people of the island, and they appreciate that fact; neighbors some distance apart, who formerly had to hitch up a team to pass a few words, can now at an expense of only two cents send a letter by a carrier with assurance of its being promptly delivered. It is highly gratifying to Congressman Bull that his whole constituency is to be as well provided with postal facilities as those on this island now are.

Rev. Thomas W. Punnelt of Tarrytown, N. Y., will officiate Sunday at St. Mary's Church, East Main road, South Portsmouth, at 10:30 a. m.

Luncheon.

Clams a la Newburg. Water Cress Salad.
Cheese Sandwiches, Toasted.
Iced Tea.

Dinner.

Cream of Asparagus.
Lamb Potpie.
Cauliflower. Lettuce Salad.
Cherry Pie. Coffee.

Curried Eggs. Two tablespoonfuls of butter, two small onions (minced), two dessertspoonfuls of curry powder, two tablespoonfuls of flour, half a pint of veal or chicken stock, two tablespoonfuls of cream, six hard boiled eggs cut in slices. Put into the chafing dish butter and onions and cook until they begin to brown. Stir in the curry powder. Mix well and add flour, stirring quickly all the time; then add the stock or a tablespoonful of fluid beef dissolved in boiling water. When the mixture has simmered for ten minutes, add the cream and eggs.

Clams a la Newburg. One pint of clams, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one gill of sherry, half a pint of cream, yolks of two eggs, a scant teaspoonful of salt. Trim from the clams the tough part, being careful not to cut the soft portion. Melt the butter over boiling water, stirring constantly. When creamy, put in the sherry. Beat together the yolks of the eggs and the cream and add gradually, stirring all the time. As soon as all is mixed turn in the clams and cook until plump.

MENU FOR SUNDAY.

It is terrible to begin to let the conscience grow hard, for it soon sears like a hot iron.—[Bishop Simpson.

Breakfast.

Supper.

Cold Lamb, Mint Sauce.
Cheese. Biscuits. Black Coffee.
Potato Salad.
Young Onions. Cress. Sandwiches.
Iced Tea. Lemon.

To Stew Cod. Season some slices of cod with grated nutmeg, pepper, salt, a bunch of sweet herbs and an onion stuck with cloves. Put them into a stewpan with half a pint of white wine and a quarter of a pint of water. Cover them close and let them simmer for five minutes; then squeeze in the juice of a lemon, put in a few oysters with their liquid strained, a piece of butter rolled in flour and a blade or two of mace. Cover them close and let them stew gently. Shake the pan often to prevent burning. When the fish is cooked, take out the onions and sweet herbs, lay the cod in a warm dish, pour the sauce over it and serve.

NAVAL NOTES.

Commander A. B. H. Lillie, who was detached from training ship Vicksburg, has reported for duty at the Brooklyn navy yard, and Commander Oscar W. Farenholt has been detached from this yard and assigned to the navy yard board.

Lieutenant Commander John Hubbard has been detached from the Brooklyn navy yard and placed in charge of the inspection of torpedoes at E. W. Bliss & Co.'s works, and of ordnance at the American Projectile Company's works.

Chaplain Wesley O. Holway, who had been ordered to the Asiatic station, has had his orders revoked and will continue on duty on receiving ship Vermont. Chaplain Sylvester D. Boorum has been detached from the Brooklyn navy yard and ordered to the Philadelphia on the Asiatic squadron.

The Chicago sailed Tuesday from Tamative, Madagascar, for Delagoa. The ship was on her way around the Cape of Good Hope to Brazil, but owing to the unsettled state of affairs in the Transvaal, she will be retained in that vicinity as long as may be necessary to afford protection to the American interests in that quarter.

Commander R. W. Milligan has been ordered to duty at the Norfolk navy yard.

Lieutenant Commander C. P. Howell is detached from the Resolute and ordered to the New York navy yard as a member of the board to inspect stores, etc.

Lieutenant Commander J. S. Ogden is assigned to additional duty in connection with the machinery of the Columbia and other vessels.

Ensigns H. A. Pearson, F. L. Chadwick, F. D. Read, C. J. Lang, H. B. Price, M. E. Trench, B. B. McCormick, W. K. Gise, W. Ball, W. V. Powelson, J. R. P. Pringle, E. S. Kellogg, E. H. Campbell, O. P. Jackson and F. H. Clark, Jr., have been promoted to lieutenants, junior grade.

Captain J. B. Coghlan will go to Puget sound after all, as commandant of the naval station at Bremerton. The original order was suspended, owing to the discovery of the inability of the Navy Department to retire Captain Green, the present commander of the station, under the terms of the personnel act. Having already made arrangements to give up his command, however, Captain Green will turn it over to Captain Coghlan August 1 and come East.

PERSONALS.

....Mrs. McKinley was able to sit up yesterday afternoon. Dr. Rixey says she is gaining strength steadily, and believes she will be able to go out for her customary drive in a few days.

....Dr. E. Y. Mullins of the First Baptist Church, Newton Centre, Mass., has been unanimously elected to the presidency of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary at Louisville, to succeed Dr. Whitsett, resigned.

....The Dorothea Dix Memorial Association of Hampden, Me., is to erect a liberty pole upon its grounds in that town, July 4, in memory of Miss Dix, that the flag loved and honored may wave over her birthplace until the society is able to erect a monument.

....Daniel F. Tiemann, who was elected mayor of the city of New York in 1858, died at his home there yesterday. He was in his ninety-fifth year, but was a vigorous man for his age, and was active in business up to about a year ago. He was a manufacturer and dealer in paint. He leave a widow, 92 years of age, three daughters and two sons.

....Mr. and Mrs. Antonio de Navarro are again settled in their beautiful home, Court Farm, at the picturesque village of Broadway, near Worcester. She and her husband are living a life in the open in this ideal spot. Their young son, who is nearly three years old, is said to be a wonderful boy, and to be able to speak German as well as English. Mrs. de Navarro has for neighbors and friends Marie Corelli, the novelist, and Maude Valerie White, the song writer. Her mother-in-law, Mme. de Navarro, and "Chappie" de Navarro will be her guests during the summer.

THE HIDDEN BROOK.

So flows my love along your life, O friend—
A whispered song, with neither break nor end,
Outbreathed wherever your dear footsteps tend.

Albeit you listen not, are not aware
Of any music throbbing on the air,
Still my full heart goes singing to you there,

Content, although the way be long to run
And closed forever from the moon and sun,
With emerald dusks and opal dawns all one—

Content, content, if Heaven but grant this meed,
That you may drink in any hour of need.

THE DEVELOPMENT OF A MACHINE SHOP.

Most machine shops are not made—they grow—and consequently there are few, if any, in which every detail is arranged in accordance with the latest practice—even in those cases where the proprietors themselves are thoroughly familiar with the latest developments in the art of producing modern machine tools. I know of no machine shop in which the latest equipments are combined with buildings of the best design. Having had the opportunity of being intimately connected with the designing and equipping of large machine tool works, in which it has been the intention to adopt every modern improvement, I have had special occasion to consider this problem, and have followed the development and realization of plans which for three years have called for unremitting application on the part of those interested, and are not yet consummated. The manufacturer of machine tools is confronted with nearly the same problem which any other manufacturer has to solve when erecting new works. Unlike most articles of manufacture, however, machinery is never produced in what can be called, comparatively speaking, large quantities. It follows then that the organization necessary to meet the requirements for producing in small quantities must be different from that which is possible where operations can be repeated day after day, the year round, on parts remaining unchanged in design, while thousands, or perhaps hundreds of thousands, of one particular article are produced.—[H. FRIDAY, JUNE 30, 1899.

THE ROSE.

The rose was long since crowned Queen of Flowers. Though many ages have passed since then, and many rivals have put in an appearance, none have been able to dispossess her of the sovereignty then bestowed. Her dominion still extends throughout the world, and is nowhere challenged. Just when she came to this supremacy is not known, for the date of her coronation is lost in the mists of antiquity. The number of her subjects is equally uncertain, for no man has ever taken a census of the flowers that grace our world and do so much to make beautiful the mountains and the hillsides, the plains and the valleys. Every clime, from torrid heats to Arctic cold, furnishes buds and blossoms, each after its own kind; but none dispute the supremacy and queenship of the rose.

Indeed, it is difficult to number her immediate family, for even the scientists are not agreed as to the extent of her household. No one knows which is the original type from which the noble family has descended, or can point out the species from which all others have sprung, even if that species is believed to still exist with its old-time characteristic peculiarities. As everything is known to have in it the elements of progress and development, the form that so charmed our early ancestors, and led them to place the rose at the head of the list as the most lovely of flowers, has doubtless progressed with the centuries and grown still more beautiful as she has arrayed herself in fresh attractions.

But the rose could not have been then what it is now. Nature is improving its products every day. By the guidance and help of man the rose has undergone great and many changes, and the process is still going forward. New forms are constantly appearing, and we are hearing, beautiful as they were before, of still more charming types, sometimes discovered by accident on our part and sometimes brought out by human device.

In the rose exhibit just held at Masonic hall numerous perfected blossoms were shown, but in the display there was not a single one of the earlier and less noted beauties. We refer to the wild roses, such as grow in the forests, fields and swamps, and have not been brought into cultivation and subjected to the special conditions that have been given to the more favored forms. These are, in an important sense, the progenitors of the race, from which all the varieties have sprung, and but for such we should have no roses at all. Whether they were of one or many types in the last analysis it is impossible now to determine, any more than whether there were one or many centres of creation in general, over which question the scientists sometimes dispute. They were doubtless all—as many of them are still known to be—modest bloomers, thinking little of the honors that were to come to their tribe in after years; but they managed to obtain a foothold in almost every country in the north temperate zone, and ranged from the tropics to Lapland and Hudson bay.

When America was peopled, new and strange species were found on the Atlantic coasts, and still others on the broad and inhospitable prairies of the West, and some of these proved among the very best of their class. Among those that grow in this vicinity, and might have been gathered in to grace the tables of the Horticultural Society, we may name Rosa Carolina, which has a tall stem, from five to eight feet, armed with sharp thorns and quite difficult to handle. The flowers are pale rose color and in corymbs, and are by no means unattractive. The rose grows in swamps and woods, and sometimes forms dense thickets of considerable extent. Rosa Lucida is much the same in the general appearance of the flower, but is only about half the height of the Carolina. It prefers dry land, but the two are often found occupying the same field—which is fortunate, as the one does not blossom until the other has gone out of flower, and so the season is extended. The period of the Lucida is in May and June, while the Carolina extends through July and even into August. In rose plantations where the so-called wild specimens are brought into use these should be planted together, as is done in the Arnold Arboretum, where certain streets and walks are bordered with masses of hundreds and thousands of these growths, including others of the same class. In the Southern states what is known as the Cherokee rose answers somewhat to the same description, but is not sufficiently hardy to withstand Northern winters. There are several other species growing in New England, some of which are often seen along with those named, growing by the roadside—but we shall make this article too long if we attempt to describe them.

Mythology has its legends concerning almost every object in nature, and here is one of its explanations of the origin of the rose as wrought out by a German poet and artist: Bacchus is represented as speaking: "I was pursuing a young nymph; the beautiful fugitive was flying with a light pose upon the flowers, and looking back she was laughing mischievously on noticing me tottering along and following her with an unsteady step. Surely, I should never have succeeded in overtaking this beautiful creature if a fluttering piece of her robe had not hindered her in a thorn bush. Enchanted, I approached and said to her: 'Do not be so much frightened; I am Bacchus, god of wine and pleasure, eternally young.' Then, seized with respect, she dropped her eyes and blushed. As a mark of my gratitude to the thorn bush, I touched it with my wand and commanded that it should be covered with flowers, the lovely red color which should imitate the blushes that had spread over the cheeks of the nymph. I commanded, and the rose was born."

WORK FOR THE HEALTH BOARD.

The authorities of San Francisco did well in quarantining a Japanese steamer on which a case of bubonic plague was believed to exist. Too much caution cannot be exercised in this direction. There have been alarming reports of the progress of this plague toward the Mediterranean by way of Egypt, and it is disquieting that even a single case is reported as having crossed the Pacific. If the San Francisco board of health will do its full duty it will be entitled to great credit. A despatch received is to the effect that the steamer has been released from quarantine, after having been thoroughly fumigated. Her passengers and crew are held on the island, but the steamer is lying off the Pacific Mail dock, where it is hoped to unload her cargo. Dr. Barbat of the board of health will develop bacilli taken from the glands of the two Japanese sailors and the members of the board of health declare their intention to prevent the landing of freight from the vessel.

THE TRIUMPH OF JUSTICE.

Baby Marion Clark is avenged, and the sentence of Mrs. "Addie" Barrows, following that of her husband, to the extent of the law, is likely to have a discouraging effect on the industry of appropriating other people's children for speculative purposes. The woman pleaded for mercy to the judge—she who showed no mercy to that other woman, the mother of the stolen child; but it is gratifying to be able to state that he allowed no false sentimentality to sway him in passing judgment. The plea that the woman was weak-minded and under the control of her husband had no effect upon him. She was intelligent and resourceful—probably more so than the man—and she knew what she was doing. She was willing to inflict the keenest mental torture in order to extract money from the parents of the stolen child. She deserved no pity, for she showed none.

Mayor Jones of Toledo, who was so successful as an independent candidate for his present position as to be able to defeat all those regularly nominated, is now thoroughly impressed with the idea that he can carry the joke a little farther, and make himself governor of Ohio through the same process. He thinks the days of political parties are passing, and so sets about to establish a party of his own.

The friends of Harvard are greatly elated over the victories won yesterday in New London, and they have reason to be joyful. It is the first time in eight years that Yale has failed to win the 'varsity race, and it was coming to be a question whether Harvard had the power to succeed over the Connecticut college at all. But in this case she won handsomely, and that doubt is removed.

A new turn is given to the affair of Mrs. Dodge and the government inspectors who seized her jewels for an alleged attempt to evade the customs duties on her return from Europe. It is now intimated, if not openly declared, that many of these pearls and diamonds are imitations, so that the loss, if the penalties are exacted, may not be so great as has been supposed.

The excitement in France over the return of Dreyfus is in no wise diminishing, though public sentiment is turning decidedly in his favor. And yet the enemies of the captain are so violent and so desperate that it is found necessary to guard the house occupied by Mrs. Dreyfus with a strong cordon of police and soldiers, for fear that the lady herself may be assassinated. Queer people, those Frenchmen!

It was observed that wherever Governor Roosevelt went in his trip to the Southwest, and saw an old comrade of the Santiago campaign in the assemblies which he addressed, he did not fail to recognize him across the heads of the crowd, and extend a cordial greeting. This never failed to add to the hilarity of the occasion, and to put the people into an enthusiastic frame of mind.

The record of drowning accidents for the season of 1899 shows the same carelessness and disregard of evident conditions that have existed from year to year all along. We sometimes speak of the "treacherous waves and waters" when such things happen, but it is more frequently the case that the responsibility should be charged to the recklessness of the victims.

John Fiske is writing a history of the Spanish war, and declares that his best material is gathered not from official reports but from the newspapers, the latter giving minor details and local color. And yet a good many people of lesser note are accustomed to say that we cannot depend on anything that we see in the newspapers.

Says the Springfield Union: "We are a nation with a conscience, and we will not surrender into the hands of Aguinaldo the lives of foreign residents or the vast amount of property the security of which depends upon us. We will not sacrifice to anarchy the thousands of inoffensive natives who would rather be ruled by Spain than by the Tagalog tribe."

Ex-President Andrews has succeeded in carrying his point before the Chicago school committee, and has been re-elected superintendent. So far as we can judge, Dr. Andrews is in the right in this controversy, and the opposition comes chiefly from those who are engaged in personal and political combinations and who do not wish to be interfered with.

Secretary Alger declares that he is not to resign, but is perfectly satisfied with the situation as it is. Probably he is the only man in the country that shares in this entire approval of his course since he has been in office.

THE MAGAZINES.

In the timeliness, interest, variety and authority of its articles, the July number of the North American Review surpasses, if possible, even the high mark which the May and June numbers set for this publication. The most conspicuous feature is a poem—the first published in this periodical for many years—by Algernon Charles Swinburne. It is a description of a storm during "A Channel Passage" from Calais to Dover, as seen by the eye of a genius of imagination. A contribution of unique interest and suggestiveness is the paper by Prince Oukhtomsky, editor of the St. Petersburg Viedomosti, the organ of the Russian government, and his associate, Vladimir Holmstrem, in which they warn America of the dangers lurking in an Anglo-American association, and urge the establishment of a close understanding between the United States and Russia. Rev. Dr. William Barry, a well-known Catholic author, gives the history of the controversy which has been raging in the Catholic church, over what is called "Americanism." Baroness Von Suttner predicts an early realization of the desire for "Universal Peace," and Sydney Brooks recounts the events which have led to the strained relations between "England and the Transvaal." The weak points in the charter of the Greater New York are dealt with by Bird S. Coler, the comptroller of New York city, who suggests measures by which these may be removed. George H. Hull, in "Pig Iron and Prosperity," advocates the storage of a large supply of pig iron which would be adequate to the necessities of the most important industries of the country. Mrs. Schuyler van Rensselaer replies to Mrs. Rebecca Harding Davis's recent arraignment of the public school system, showing that our schools have been, if not an unmixed blessing, a most salutary influence in the republic. An Officer of the Army of Occupation in Cuba urges the immediate withdrawal of the American troops from the island. Charles Whibley makes "The Tercentenary of Velasquez," recently celebrated in Madrid, the occasion for a delightful and sympathetic sketch of the life of the greatest of Spanish painters. Major-General Nelson A. Miles, commanding the United States army, in the third part of his series on "The War with Spain" narrates the occurrences connected with the invasion and reduction of Porto Rico, and Andrew Lang writes in an amusing and instructive manner of the history and development of "Golf," from a St. Andrews point of view.

The July issue of the New England Magazine contains several articles which will especially appeal to the summer sojourner. The Lake Champlain country is treated by Rev. John Wright Buckham, an enthusiastic admirer of the region; the old town of Rochester, Mass., of which Marion and Mattapoisett were originally a part, is the subject of an admirable article by Mary Hall Leonard, and in "A River Town" Samuel Morley Comstock describes quiet days in the little town of Essex, Conn., recalling many phases of life in the old days when shipbuilding was an important industry and her inhabitants were fond of calling their home by her early Indian name of Pettipaug. The work of the sculptor, Hiram Powers, is ably treated by Dr. Henry Boynton of Woodstock, Vt., the town which is proud to be known as the birthplace of Powers. H. C. Shelley writes of the secluded little Jordans churchyard in the English country, "Where William Penn Is Buried," illustrating his paper with several of his own photographs. In "The Last Letter of John Brown" Rev. Charles H. Small tells of his discovery of a letter of John Brown, undoubtedly the last he ever penned, written, on the day of his execution, to an old friend and neighbor, Mrs. Lydia Case of Haddam, Ohio. The "Three Little Kinsmen of the Feathered Band" whose habits of life William Sloane Kennedy has so carefully observed, and here most interestingly describes, are the humming bird, the marsh wren and the yellow-breasted chat. In Ernest H. Baldwin's valuable article on "New England Colonial Liquor Legislation" he refers to many of the early New England town records where laws are to be found restricting the use of intoxicating beverages. The portrait of Rudyard Kipling which appears as the frontispiece is used in connection with Rev. Jabez T. Sunderland's thoughtful study of "The Religion of Rudyard Kipling," as evidenced in his writing. There is an excellent story by Andrew Comstock McKenzie, entitled "The Special Nurse," and there are several poems of merit. The "Editor's Table" is devoted entirely to the "Present Crisis," maintaining that it is not a question of expansion, of world power, of missionary opportunity or of political competence, now before the American people, but the question how much we really love liberty for ourselves and for other men.

You Don't Get Tired.

It is a peculiar fact that you never get tired of drinking Williams' Root Beer. When other drinks fail, you can always come back to it with joy. It is the most cooling and thirst-quenching drink ever invented. It is made from delicious roots and herbs—a gift from Nature herself. When you are tired, thirsty and overheated, remember that a bottle of Williams' Root Beer Extract makes five gallons of health-giving beverage. Insist on having Williams' Root Beer.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, June 30, 8 A. M.—For New England—Fair tonight, Saturday and Sunday; continued low temperature tonight, and warmer Saturday; light westerly winds, becoming southwesterly.

FOR BOSTON AND VICINITY.

BOSTON, June 30, 8 A. M.—For Boston and vicinity—Fair weather tonight and Saturday; rising temperature Saturday; west to southwest winds.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

The weather has been fair during the past 24 hours over the major portion of the country. Exceptions to this condition were rain on the south Atlantic coast and in parts of the Gulf states, light showers in the Middle states and rain in central and southern Texas. At Palestine, Texas, nearly seven inches of rain has fallen within the past 48 hours. The weather is fair this morning, except in parts of Texas, and there are practically no indications of storm development which would affect eastern sections. The cool wave overspreads all eastern districts, due to the prevailing high pressure in the lake regions, which has a maximum of 30.3 inches.

EJECTMENT SUIT TODAY.

Verdict for Plaintiff in the Case of Goffe vs. Zuill.

After argument by Colonel Sheffield, counsel for plaintiff, Judge Douglas briefly charged the jury in the case of Goffe vs. Zuill, executor, in the common pleas division of the supreme court yesterday afternoon. It was admitted that the only question was to determine the amount due plaintiff and the evidence did not fix any definite sum. The court pointed out to the jurors that it was not a matter in which they ought to be very strenuous for their own opinions as against those of their colleagues. If it were a matter of adding a column of figures and one juror was an expert he would be justified in hanging out forever, and if the others did not agree with his figures so much the worse for the others. This case, however, presented a question in which no one can be sure he has the right figures, and jurors should candidly examine and listen to the others with a view to reaching an agreement.

Keeper Romeo led the jurors up stairs at 3:15; at 3:43 they were back in their seats with a verdict for plaintiff for $560. Defendant still has a question of law to be decided.

The court immediately adjourned to 9:30 a. m. Friday.

Judge Douglas again presided this morning, and again the jurors found a case to try. Joel Peckham of Middletown was foreman of this panel. The case was that of Marco A. Russo against the heirs of the late Samuel Sterne, for damages for being ejected from the store at 40 Washington square, where he had a barber shop. Mr. Sheffield appeared for plaintiff and Mr. Burdick for defendants.

The undisputed facts appear to have been that plaintiff hired the store from the late Judge Sterne and took possession in May, 1894. He paid his rent and all went well until February 7, 1899, when a notice to leave was sent to him. He saw Charles T. Sterne and Grant P. Taylor about it, telling Mr. Taylor he did not want to move, having built up something of a business. March 1 Mr. Sterne came and wanted the key, a day or two later he came twowith men to put plaintiff out. March 4 Mr. Sterne arrived at 5:30 or 5:45 a. m. and found men employed by him and the other heirs in the store, the catch of the back door being sprung and the front door fastened by a board on the inside. Mr. Russo's effects were in the back yard (put there by the men) and some of his papers were blowing around in the wet. It was foggy and later rained; the things were therefore put under cover. The "cup-case was set out on the street. Mr. Russo got wind of what was going on, but his property not being where he left it, or in the condition in which he left it, he let it alone and brought this suit for damages. He had also been arrested, March 3, but that suit was discontinued after he put the matter in the hands of counsel. Plaintiff had a list of his property, footing up about $517, which included two chairs, $76; washstand, $45, 135 towels, and books, $100. He claimed damages also for loss of custom. He had some difficulty in getting started again.

The principal difference was in regard to plaintiff's declaration that Judge Sterne told him he should have three months' notice if he were required to move. No witness was present. Judge Sterne's rent book was in court, but whatever may or may not have been in it, as to this, it could not be used as evidence except as to the account, which was not disputed, rent being paid from month to month. Defendants claimed that plaintiff was a tenant from month to month and had had sufficient notice to leave. Mr. Sterne said he notified him where his property was and had never exercised acts of ownership over it.

Miss Tobin, who it was claimed had a previous contract to have the store whenever she needed it, was put on the stand, but was not allowed to tell about this as it didn't make any difference unless it was recorded, and so was a notice to others. Defendant claimed that plaintiff repeatedly agreed to be out by March 1. When Mr. Sterne was on the stand a little "if" got slipped in by somebody, so that it was not quite clear whether plaintiff was said to have agreed to get a place and go, or that he would go "if" he got a place. The court said a contract, if for more than a year, should have been in writing.

The charge of the court was of special interest, as the clash between rights of owners under the old common law and their rights as defined by more modern statutes make questions sometimes intricate. After the arguments by counsel the court spoke very plainly on these points. He charged that the acts of defendants were of themselves a trespass, and under some circumstances would carry damages for a greater amount than that actually done. Defendants say it was not a trespass, as they had a right to enter and put plaintiff out, they being landlords and he a trespasser. If this be true it is an ample defense, and they had a right to put him out if it could be done without a breach of the peace. There are other methods. It behooves a man who takes this one to be very sure of his right to do so; he must satisfy the jury that he did proceed rightly; the burden is on him to prove it. If the hiring was from year to year, there is no pretense of such a right; if from month to month it must be terminated by legal notice (or agreement).

The court ruled that hiring from year to year had not been proved. All the evidence showed it was from month to month. There were new landlords and whatever promise had been made by Judge Sterne, plaintiff dealt with the heirs without any notice that the hiring was different from ordinary hiring from month to month.

The law requires notice from the landlord. The evidence as to this notice is pretty vague. If it was signed by Mr. Sterne as executor, it was no notice whatever (nobody told very clearly how it read and no copy was produced.) If notice was not properly given, then the defendants were trespassers.

In regard to a question of damages, plaintiff was thrown out of his place, to which "good will" of customers was attached, and which was on a very public place. Papers blown about the street certainly are an element of damages. If plaintiff didn't know where his things were, as he claims, defendants were pretty careless; if he was notified and did nothing, he was pretty careless. What shape is it in? A party who takes property unlawfully cannot complain if held for damages.

The jurors climbed the stairs at 12:55. Both sides have exceptions which entitle them to carry the case, after a verdict rendered, to the appellate division.

A would-be citizen came near being sworn in, but a miss is as good as a mile. The clerk detected trouble in the man's paper and the court told the man he must get different evidence. Apparently the affidavit part of the application showed the man to be a resident of some other state.

The jury in the case of Russo vs. Sterne et al. came in at 2:40 and rendered a verdict for plaintiff, fixing damages at $150.

The court then adjourned until Monday morning when the criminal docket will be in order.

JAMESTOWN.

[Regular correspondence of the News.]

There was a chapter of accidents and exciting incidents about the ferry landing yesterday afternoon. The first occurred at 2 o'clock, when the 4-year-old daughter of Mrs. Helmic strayed on board the ferryboat and was not discovered until the boat left the wharf. Upon arrival of the boat in Newport the porter took the child in charge and returned here to her mother at Jamestown.

About an hour later Charles Vars, a lad who had been spearing fish, accidentally ran the barbed spear into his leg. The spear was fastened to a long pole, and the boy suffered excruciating pain until the pole was sawed off by H. H. Luther, who assisted the sufferer to Dr. Birney's office, where it was found necessary to use a knife before the spear could be removed. The little fellow was wonderfully brave through the whole affair.

A half hour or more after this accident several women at the Gardner House saw a baby of Mrs. Ladyman fall from the second-story window to the beach. Mrs. Hirst and Miss Austin rushed to the assistance of the little one and took it to the office of Dr. Birney, who decided that the child was not seriously injured. This morning the baby seems as well as usual.

Later in the day the attention of the people about the boat landing was attracted for the fourth time during the afternoon, this case being not that of a child lost or injured, but one relating to the payment or non-payment of the fare of a horse across the ferry. A horse dealer from Providence presented himself at the Newport ferry with a led horse, and offered passenger tickets for payment of fare for the animal. These the ticket man refused to accept, demanding twenty-five cents, the regular fare for a horse. The man, finding he could not get his horse on board on passenger tickets, shipped the animal as freight, and it was entered upon the way bill of the freight agent. Arriving at Jamestown, the owner attempted to take the horse ashore, but was not allowed to do so without first paying the twenty-five cents. He again presented passenger tickets, which were again refused. The owner then left the horse in the hands of the company, and he was immediately stabled and will be cared for until the matter is settled. The argument between the horseman and the employes of the company drew a number of people to the wharf, and there was considerable excitement, but when the new police force made its appearance, later, all was quiet.

The graduating exercises of the First Grammar school took place today at the town hall, which was decorated for the occasion, and the parents and friends of the scholars attended in large numbers. The following program was carried out, the singing, under the direction of Mrs. M. S. Champlin, being a special feature: Song, "Sunrise," by the school; invocation, Rev. W. D. Mackinnon; song, "Out in the Meadow," Intermediate school; recitation, "The Welcome," two boys; recitation, "The Indians' Appeal, Harry Mackinnon; "Morning," solo and chorus, Beulah Knowles singing the solo; recitation, "You Never Can Tell," Ruth Knowles; song, "Pussy Willow," Primary school; recitation, "William the Conqueror," Earle Preston; solo, "April Song," Annie Walsh; recitation, "A Small Boy's Plea," James Hoyle; recitation, "The Boys," boys; song, "Stars of the Summer Night," Grammar school; recitation, "Sunbeams," Lillie Ellis; song, "The Blacksmith," Primary school; recitation, "The Experiment," Foster Knowles; solo, "Lullaby," Sadie Hoyle; recitation, "Mrs. Arithmetic's Party," Stephen Tefft; solo, "New Moon," Irene Allen; "The Rainbow Song, seven girls; recitation, "If We Knew," Jessie Newman; "A Modern Parable," Ruth Knowles; solo, "The Sword of Bunker Hill," Foster Knowles; song, "Lightly Row," Grammar school; "Time of Roses," schools; awarding of diplomas and remarks, chairman of committee; song, "God Speed the Right," school.

The guests at the several hotels have been invited to attend a hop at the Gardner House Saturday evening.

R. W. Curry of Newport has the contract to build a cottage for J. M. Whitall of Philadelphia, on his lot on Bay View drive, from plans by Cope & Stewardson of Philadelphia. This house will be much larger than any cottage yet built on the island. The cellar is being laid out today, under the direction of Captain Cotton, and the building will be commenced at once and finished in time for occupancy next season.

The services at the Central Baptist Church Sunday will be of a patriotic nature, in view of the near approach of the anniversary of the Declaration of Independence. The pastor, Rev. W. D. Mackinnon, will preach at the morning service, at 11 o'clock, on "Our Heritage," and in the evening, at 8 o'clock, on "Freedom."

SOLDIERS IN TROUBLE.

WINNEMUCCA, Nev., June 30.—Last night a special train, containing members of Companies L and M of the Twenty-Fifth infantry and Company E of the Twenty-Fourth colored regiment, arrived in Winnemucca. A number of men left the train and raided a neighboring saloon, wrecking the bar and stealing all the liquor in sight. Chris Deiss, the barkeeper, was shot down by one of the soldiers, and those who committed the deed died to the train.

The alarm was given at once, and before the train could draw out of the station it was surrounded by the excited citizens of the place. Sheriff McDeid and District Attorney Van Dusen would not permit the train to leave until the guilty persons were given up. Major Noble, who was in command, ordered out the three companies for inspection, and citizens who were present when the shooting occurred looked closely at each man. Only one was identified, Sergeant Smith, who gave a satisfactory explanation of his presence in the saloon. At this point a recruit gave out that in daylight he could identify one of the men connected with the robbery. Mr. Van Dusen insisted that the train remain here until daylight, so that the identification could be made, but Major Noble would not consent to this, and at 1 o'clock gave orders for the train to start.

A writ of attachment was then served on the local ticket agent, prohibiting the movement of the train until 5 a. m., or until the soldier had been turned over to the officers. Shortly afterward, however, the district attorney consented to the release of the train. Major Noble claims that because of this occurrence the troops who were to leave San Francisco tonight for the Philippines have been delayed.

CENTRAL PACIFIC BONDS.

Action Brought by Trustees to Foreclose on Series A.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., June 30.—A voluminous complaint has been filed in the superior court of this city in the case of D. O. Mills and Ogden Mills, the trustees for holders of bonds upon the railroad property of the Central Pacific Railroad Company, as plaintiffs, vs. the Central Pacific Railway Company, the United States of America, the Metropolitan Trust Company of New York and the Southern Pacific Company as defendants. Van R. Patterson, of counsel for the plaintiffs, in explanation of this suit said:

"This action was brought to foreclose the lien on series A of the first mortgage bonds of the Central Pacific Company, issued July 15, 1865, to D. O. Mills and William E. Barron, as trustees. The par value of all the bonds secured by the mortgage is $6,303,000. The mortgage covers the Central Pacific Railroad Company from Sacramento to the eastern boundary of California. The bonds matured July 1, 1895, but April 27, 1895, the trustees, with the consent of the bondholders, extended the time of payment until January 1, 1898, August 5, 1897, a further extension of time was granted until the first day of December, 1898, the company having failed to make payment within the time stipulated. June 21, 1899, the bondholders of more than fifty bonds requested that the trustees commence foreclosure proceedings."

Colored Miners Fired Upon at Fredonia, Illinois.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 30.—A special to the Post Despatch from Carbondale, Ill., says: It is reported that a number of colored miners from Pana, Ill., who went to the Williamson county coal field last night were fired upon today when they attempted to enter the mines at Fredonia. When nearing the mines they were met with a few shots resulting in the killing of two persons and the wounding of 20 men. Desultory firing, it is reported, has been going on all morning.

NOT GUILTY OF ASSAULT.

There was a long session of the district court today, lasting until 1 o'clock, much of the time being occupied in hearing evidence on the complaint against Eugene Schreier, charged with assault on Max Levy at the Jewish synagogue grounds June 8. After a number of witnesses had been examined the court held that the charge had not been sustained, and discharged Mr. Schreier. The case grew out of the differences over the selection of a minister and the possession of the synagogue.

Benoni Weaver, charged with vagrancy, was found guilty and sentenced to one year in the state workhouse.

Duncan Cameron, charged with assault, was found guilty and fined $10 and costs, $30 in all, which was paid.

Bernard Casey and David Patterson were accused of having no visible means of support. One of them wore a volunteer's uniform. The court decided that the evidence was not sufficient, and discharged them.

All other cases were continued.

THE JETER FAMILY CONCERT.

The annual concert of the Jeter family attracted a large audience to Masonic hall last evening, and those present had many opportunities to express their approval of the excellent music rendered by Rev. Mr. Jeter's children in various instruments and in vocal selection. As usual the children showed remarkable aptitude for music and their various numbers evidenced the improvement which the careful training they have had must inevitably develop. They were assisted by Miss C. Louise Gillingham in readings, Master John G. Green in a violin solo, and Messrs. A. P. Crandall, William Rice and John Green in the orchestral work.

IN FOREIGN TRAVEL.

Many Millions Are Spent Every Year by Americans.

Much has been said and written about the great number of Americans who go abroad every year, but few persons not connected with ocean transportation realize what an immense business has been built up in travel on the sea. The bald statement that 150,000 Americans will go to Europe this year conveys no adequate impression of its proportions.

These figures, it must be remembered, relate only to Atlantic travel. There are increasingly large numbers of persons who start on their wanderings from Pacific ports. This travel has received an unusual stimulus this year from the events which have turned the attention of Americans to the far East. Counting in the voyagers to the Orient, to South American and other less-visited points, there are probably not less than 200,000 Americans who will visit foreign shores this summer. If they all went on one grand excursion it would require a train of passenger cars 30 miles long and a fleet of 500 steamers, forming in single file a steaming line 100 miles long, to convey them.

Nearly two-thirds of these travelers want to leave this country in May, June or July, and to return in August, September and October; therefore, the tide of foreign travel is marked by movements as regular as those of ocean itself. It rises sharply at the beginning of May, reaches its height toward the end of June, and commences to ebb along in August. The outward movement is at its height now, but there are indications that the return flow will begin somewhat later than usual this season. It is during the six months of summer travel that the companies operating the great ocean lines make profits, enabling them to keep their magnificent steamers in operation the year around.

There are 30 steamship lines carrying passengers from New York, some 20 from other Atlantic ports and a dozen from different points on the Pacific coast. Of course, many of these do their principal business in freight, and have only a small passenger capacity. The great passenger-carrying lines which operate the fast liners number about a dozen all together. These various companies run about 150 ships, besides freight steamers and sailing vessels.

The little Americans who lament so vast an expenditure of money for foreign travel would be surprised to learn how large a proportion of it remains in this country. Nearly all the voyagers must travel some distance by rail before beginning their ocean journeys. The amount spent in this way and in unusual expenses in preparations for the journey is at least $25 for each person. This makes an item of $5,000,000 to begin with, which goes directly to American laborers and tradesmen. Every person who goes abroad, too, finds it necessary to purchase extra clothing and traveling supplies to the extent of at least $50.

All the liners outfit for their voyages on this side. American meats, American canned vegetables and American ice cream supply their tables. But the men who sail and own the vessels are for the most part foreigners, and their earnings go into the pockets of foreign shareholders.

The cost of first cabin passage by all the great liners is $100 during the summer season, while second cabin passage costs from $40 to $80. About two-thirds of the Americans going abroad travel first cabin, and one-third second cabin. Accordingly, if the estimated number of Americans go abroad this season, they will pay the steamship companies something like $17,000,000, or very nearly the amount of the Spanish indemnity.

The cost of the stay in Europe, or wherever the tourist may elect to roam, varies, of course, according to his means, tastes and methods. The rule ordinarily laid down is an average of $10 per day for each person to cover all the ordinary expenses of travel. As the length of the usual stay is from six weeks to two months, the outlay for each person, judged by this standard, will amount to between $400 and $600. Of course, there are many who spend several times this amount, and an average of $500 for each person is a very conservative estimate. According to this calculation the amount spent by Americans on foreign touring this summer will not fall short of $100,000,000, or more than is spent by the governments of the smaller European countries for all their expenses.

One item in our foreign travel account that amounts to surprising proportions is the expenditure for tips. The American abroad realizes that he is expected to tip, and if inexperienced he is likely to overdo the matter, distributing his fees with a lavishness that excites the contempt rather than the admiration of the recipients.

Five per cent of the amount purchased is the established European tip. Waiters in the restaurants expect that; more they do not appreciate or understand. But even if Americans adhere to this rule, which most of them do not, their outlay in tips and fees amounts to a pretty penny in the course of a season.

The tipping on shipboard varies according to taste or will, but on a land tour through Europe the fees to waiters, porters, guides to public buildings and a horde of unnecessary officials need not be large. Twenty-five dollars for each traveler is a meagre allowance, but at this estimate it adds $5,000,000 to the bill paid by American visitors to the old countries.

Another item that reaches to about the same figure is the money expended for souvenirs. Every American who goes abroad brings home a number of little gifts for his or her friends, and this outlay is seldom less than $25 for each traveler. The custom of shopping abroad has fallen off considerably of late, on account of our pride in our own products. But every woman who goes to Paris spends from $25 to $500 for the "perfectly lovely" creations of the Parisian shops. Thus another item of millions is added to the account.

From these figures it will be seen that by a conservative estimate $150,000,000 will be spent this summer by Americans who are going to foreign countries, and at least $100,000,000 of this amount will be spent abroad. The compensating return from Europeans visiting America is too small to be taken into account.

It is almost a certainty that the close of this season will give Americans the right to claim the distinction of being the greatest travelers on earth. This honor has been claimed for them before, and for years they have been second only to the English, but now they bid fair to outrank their Anglo-Saxon cousins as well as the rest of the world.

Perhaps there is no better index of foreign travel than is afforded by Paris, for the reason that almost every person who tours on the continent visits the French capital. Inasmuch as the Parisian police department keeps a record of the number of travelers stopping in the city, it is possible to gain some reliable information from their statistics.

In 1885, according to the reports, a little more than 20,000 Americans visited Paris, while the number of English visitors was 35,000. In 1895 the number of Americans had increased to 42,000, while of English there were 45,000, and of Germans 32,000. During the coming season, estimating the increase of Parisian visitors from the probable increase in the number of Americans going abroad, the number recorded by the Parisian authorities will be more than 60,000, while the English and Germans are hardly likely to approach the 50,000 mark. In the amount of money spent and the distances traversed divergence between the Europeans and Americans is even more striking.

Putting together the total distance covered by this American army of foreign occupation, it cannot be less than 500,000,000 miles, or enough for a round trip excursion to the centre of our solar system, with side trips to Mars, Jupiter and all the intervening planets. If a party of 100 persons set out to cover the distance traveled in a single season by the Americans who go abroad, they would each be compelled to travel 200 times around the world—a task which would keep them busy at the highest speed they could attain for a matter of 50 years, a lifetime of activity.

About 10 per cent of those who go abroad travel by some one of the numerous systems of personally conducted tours. This method of sightseeing is not so much in favor as formerly for the cheaper kinds of touring, but is coming to be adopted by those who demand all the luxuries of modern travel with none of its inconveniences. It is being generally adopted for trips to distant places and to points off the beaten track of the ordinary tourist, such as the Orient, Australia, northern Spain and South America.—[Washington Star.

after you have concluded that you ought not to drink coffee. It is not a medicine but doctors order it, because it is healthful, invigorating and appetizing. It is made from pure grains and has that rich seal brown color and tastes like the finest grades of coffee and costs about ¼ as much. Children like it and thrive on it because it is a genuine food drink containing nothing but nourishment. Ask your grocer for Grain-O, the new food drink. 15 and 25c.

John Montgomery Rich will preach at the morning service and Rev. Alfred Lee Royce, chaplain of flagship New York, in the evening. The music will be of a patriotic order, suitable to the anniversary of national independence.

SUPERVISOR OF CITY HALL CONSTRUCTION.

The "official" report of the "official" reporter of the city hall commission was given out this morning. It could have appeared just as well yesterday morning, but taking pattern after Secretary Alger's newspaper bureau it was thought best to try a few preliminary hints, to see how the public would take them. That they did not take them worth a cent was very evident, so a "censored" report was prepared. This states that Mr. Frederick A. Allan has been nominated as supervisor of the work on the city hall, the new one, at a salary of $4 per day, and that the nomination has to go before the City Council for confirmation or rejection.

It has been known for some time that Mr. Allan was favored for this position by some of the commission and some of their friends, but to spring his name first would, it was thought, prejudice some against him, so another name was first proposed, and after the popular indignation had boiled over, Mr. Allan's name was substituted. He is so manifestly superior to the other for the position that he now stands a very much better chance of election than he would have had had he been named in a straightforward manner.

MIDDLETOWN.

A SOAP-BUBBLE MAGICIAN.

Tops Spinning Inside Them, and Frozen to a Looking-Glass.

Very wonderful as well as very beautiful possibilities lurk in the basin of soapy water and the clay pipe, when skilfully manipulated by such "A Soap-Bubble Magician" as Meredith Nugent writes of, with convincing illustrations, in the July St. Nicholas:

"See that white rose?" Philip exclaimed pointing to a beautiful one resting upon a lacquered tray. "Well, I am going to put it inside a soap-bubble;" and in a few moments the flower was sphered over by a bubble so large and perfect that it seemed as if made of purest glass. Following this, Phil set the humming top to spinning, and amazed his audience by placing a bubble over that also. While the top still hummed under its many-hued canopy, Philip blew another bubble, and called the attention of those present to the fact that an old adage said that a bubble would burst as soon as pricked. "But here is a case," he exclaimed triumphantly, "where this old adage, like so many others, is proved to be false." Philip dropped a pen through the film; then he dropped another pen through; then a small key; then a larger key; then two nails; and then concluded the remarkable exhibition by pouring some soapy water through, after which the bubble broke. The unusually long duration of the bubbles was due to, as Philip explained, to the low temperature of the room. As soon as the little ones were assembled in a colder room, dressed as if for a sleigh-ride, Phil blew a bubble very carefully upon a small looking-glass. At the expiration of 30 seconds its brilliancy was seen to be greatly dimmed, and by the time fifty seconds had elapsed all transparency had gone. "There," cried Phil, "is a soap-bubble which will last a year, provided the room is kept cold enough, for that soap-bubble is frozen." This performance so delighted the children that Phil covered the glass with a whole array of frozen bubbles; then he broke some with a pencil, and fanned the light pieces of ice, which were like tissue-paper, all about the room.

Our young magician now resumed his wonderful entertainment in the warmer apartment. He began by blowing a large bubble on the lacquered tray; then he blew another bubble inside of this first one. "Two," he called out; and next, as if to amaze his audience completely, he blew another bubble inside this second one, filling it, as he did so, with smoke.

"I am about to show you what I think is the prettiest experiment of all," he said, and began to blow a large bubble upon the plate. Then he placed the lighted candle within a lamp-chimney, and thrust the chimney down into the great bubble.

The crowning triumph was yet to come, however. Phillip took a tumbler and half-filled it with soapy water; then he drew from the pasteboard box a small American flag, which he fastened on a stick supported by a bit of wire so that it floated over the tumbler. Then, putting a long clay pipe into the glass, he called to his uncle to blow plenty of smoke through the pipe. The moment Phil's uncle did so there issued from the tumbler an opal stream of wondrous beauty—hundreds and hundreds of pure white bubbles, which poured down the sides of the tumbler and upon the lookingglass on which it had been placed. In a few moments one of the little bubbles broke. A puff of smoke shot forth, forming, as it did so, a dainty, tiny ring; then another bubble broke, and another ring appeared; then the bubbles began to explode in such rapid succession that it became impossible to count the tiny wreaths.

THE HEAVENS IN JULY.

There is no time when the stars exercise a greater charm than in mid summer. After a near-by sun has stricken us with his fiercest rays, thousands of distant suns, glimmering through the dark, bring a contrasting sense of coolness and relief. The spirit of romance has always recognized the influence of starlight on a summer night, although psychologists, as such, appear not to have noted it. Yet the spell exists, and millions experience its effects without undertaking to account for them. But there is nothing mysterious in the phenomenon, and the astrologers can derive from it no support for their superstition. It is simply an expression of the innate poetry of humanity. Those lines of Longfellow's,

"Stars of the summer night,
Far in yon azure deeps,"

may awaken for the astronomer thoughts different from those that arise in the mind of the unscientific reader, but the impression on both is substantially the same—a half-dreaming consciousness of vastness, sublimity and superhuman power, set over against a sense of the insignificance of the earth, and mingled with a dim perception of beauty transcending terrestrial standards. Savages and civilized men alike yield to this fascination of the starry heavens, and it is capable of subduing, for awhile, the most untamed spirits.

The stars and constellations are most beautiful in the absence of the moon, and this year the opening evenings of July will be free from the presence of that "lesser light" which rules, and sometimes, for the astronomer at least, mars the night.

At 10:30 p. m. July 1, at 9:30 p. m. July 15, and at 8:30 p. m. July 31 the principal attractions of the starlit firmament will be arrayed as here described. Overhead shines the constellation Hercules, recognizable by a quadrilateral figure formed by four of its chief stars, and lying between the beautiful circlet of the Northern Crown on the west and the brilliant Vega, with its two little attendants forming a minute triangle, on the east. Directly north of Hercules is the head of Draco, marked by a conspicuous diamond figure of stars. Below the head of Draco stands the Lesser Bear, Ursa Minor, erect on the end of his long tail, which terminates in the Pole Star. West of the Northern Crown is Boötes, the giant huntsman, with his great, lone brilliant Arcturus blazing on his garter. North of Boötes appears Ursa Major with the Great Dipper descending, bowl downward, toward the northwestern horizon. The broad constellation of Virgo spreads over the lower part of the western sky, still resplendent with the glory of Jupiter's presence within its borders. Sprawling across the south, and touching the horizon, is Scorpio, the centre of the constellation made conspicuous by the fiery red Antares, one of the most remarkable of stars. East of the meridian the sky is spanned from the northern to the southern horizon by the most brilliant portion of the Milky Way. Starting under the Pole Star it passes through the zigzag figure of Cassiopeia's Chair, and higher up, opposite Vega, seems to bear the Northern Cross afloat in its nebulous stream. Next it passes by Aquila and its three notable stars—a bright one between two fainter—and then breaks into alternate deeps and shallows of starry radiance, as it pours downward through Sagittarius and the eastern part of Scorpio to the horizon.

In the constellations named above the owner of a telescope may feast his eyes on innumerable celestial beauties. Take, for instance, the celebrated Star Cluster in Hercules. The naked eye does not show it, but it can easily be found between the two stars, in the quadrilateral before mentioned, which is nearest to the North Crown, look about one-third of the way from the northern toward the southern star. A 3-inch telescope will show it; a 5 or 6-inch will reveal it as a wonder.

The northernmost of the two little stars near Vega, called Epsilon Lyræ, is a famous "double-double." An opera glass separates it into two stars; a telescope of 3 inches aperture, or more, divides each of the two again.

A little north of an imaginary line from Arcturus to the brightest star in the Northern Crown is Epsilon Boötis, a beautiful double with contrasted colors. It is a good subject for a 3-inch telescope.

The bottom star in the long beam of the Northern Cross, known as Beta Cygni, is a most charming double, the smaller star being bright blue in color. A very small telescope suffices to show it.

Southwest of the last star in the handle of the Great Dipper a lone twinkler of between the second and third magnitudes, Cor Caroli, will be seen. The telescope shows it to be a remarkably fine double, the smaller star having a lilac hue.

Antares is an exceedingly interesting double and can be seen better than last month. A 4-inch telescope will show the little bright green companion of the great red star.

With a low magnifying power sweep the telescope all along the Milky Way, from the Northern Cross to the southern horizon; the galactic riches are a perpetual source of astonishment and delight.

Mercury, as an evening star, moves eastward from the sun until July 22, about which time it should be easily seen after sunset. It passes from the constellation Cancer into Leo.

Venus, moving rapidly from Taurus into Gemini and across the latter constellation eastward, is a morning star, fast diminishing in brilliance.

Jupiter, in Virgo, is still conspicuous, although not so favorably placed for observation as in June. July 2 the shadow of Satellite III will be on the planet from 9:14 until 10:58, p. m. July 6 the shadow of Satellite I will be in transit between 8:42 and 10:54 p. m. July 7 at 10 h. 1 m. 41 s. p. m. Satellite II will disappear in eclipse.

Saturn, in Ophiuchus, between Scorpio and Sagittarius, rises before sunset and crosses the meridian, in the middle of the month, about 9 p. m. Accordingly it is well placed for observation. The rings are now opened to about their widest extent, so that the south pole of the planet is hidden behind them while the north pole appears projected against the rings as a background. Titan, the largest satellite, will be west of the planet July 4; north, July 8; east, July 12, and south, July 16. These dates represent the greatest elongations in each direction.

Uranus remains in Scorpio, and Neptune in Taurus.

New moon occurs on the afternoon of July 7; first quarter on the evening of the 15th; full moon on the afternoon of the 22d, and last quarter on the morning of the 29th. The moon is nearest on the 23d, and farthest on the 10th. The lunar conjunctions with the planets occur as follows: Venus, July 5; Neptune, July 5; Mercury, July 9; Mars, July 12; Jupiter, July 16; Uranus, July 18; Saturn, July 19. July 6, about 5 p. m. Venus and Neptune will be in conjunction, less than a degree apart. [Garrett P. Serviss, in Scientific American.

NEW YORK, June 30, Wall Street—The stock market opened easier, with Atchison preferred 57, ex div.; Burlington 134⅝, Louisville 70⅝, Manhattan 118, Missouri Pacific 48¾, Brooklyn Transit 115, Northern Pacific 48½, Rock Island 115½, ex div.; Sugar 153⅝, St. Paul 120⅛, Southern preferred 51⅛, Union Pacific 42⅝, Union Pacific preferred 77⅛, Federal Steel preferred 81¼, New York Central 138¼, ex div., and Metropolitan 228.

10—Prices of railroad stocks were shaded at the opening and pulled down the few industrials which showed opening gains, notably Manhattan and Metropolitan Street Railway, which lost their advance.

11—Speculation became rather hesitating, but a general reaction followed liberal offerings of Sugar and the city traction stocks. There was little feature in the standard stocks and although they moved in unison with the specialties the variations were narrow. Covering in Sugar caused a better tone to the trading, but dullness developed on the rise.

Noon—Money on call, strong at 5 per cent; prime mercantile paper, 3 @ 3½ per cent; sterling exchange, heavy, at $4.87½ @ ⅝ for demand and $4.85½ @ ¾ for sixty days; posted rates, $4.86 @ ½ and $4.88½; commercial bills, $4.85; silver certificates, 60½ @ 61; bar silver, 60¼; Mexican dollars, 48½; government bonds, weak. Despite the apathy of the dealings most of the principal railroad stocks reached a high level, notably St. Paul, New York Central and Northern Pacific. There was no energetic demand for any of the specialties, but they maintained their level well at the rally. Third Avenue exceptionally dropped five points. Sales to noon, 137,421 shares.

Today's Games.

Newport, 3; Manchester, 0.

John Irwin's Manchester team made its third appearance in this city yesterday, and for the second time, and the second in succession, it suffered defeat. Foley was on the rubber for the Newports and succeeded in even bettering his record made in the former game, when he held the visitors down to one run, for for the first time this season the Manchesters were shut out. It was, like all the Manchester games here, a clean, interesting and well played contest. The visitors again showed that they came to play ball and not to wrangle—and they played ball. Newport also had to play to be in the game, and the result was an exhibition that made every one say at its close that it was a good one.

There was a good-sized crowd in attendance, and for a time it looked rather blue. In the eighth, however, with the bases full, no one out and Shires at bat, the crowd resolved itself into one of those wild Babel-like gatherings that once attended the Brockton games; and then Shires did just what he has so often done in the past when a hit was needed—hit the ball hard and safe, and two runs came in. It looked like a lot more, but Hanna hit to Morrissey and a fast double play retired the side when the bases were full, with but one out.

Jim Sullivan, late of Boston and Worcester, was down to pitch for the visitors, but Morrissey, formerly of Newport, was put in. He pitched a very good game, having good control, plenty of speed, change of pace, and excellent support. It looked as though he had one bad inning, the eighth, when three hits were made and he hit two men. Foley pitched for Newport, and it was the second shutout of the week by him. He also pitched gilt-edged ball and kept the hits well scattered, three divided among nine innings. In six of those innings the first Manchester man up reached first, and in one, the third, the first two up reached the bases—and stayed there, Foley striking out Hickey on five balls, and the next two batters flying out. In fact, flying out was a favorite pastime, 19 of the visitors and 11 of the Newports putting up flies that could be caught, and 29 of them were caught. Among so many fly catches there were some really brilliant ones, and Kennedy, Gilbert and Reilley came in for considerable applause for good work.

Foley started off the run getting in both the innings in which Newport scored. In the third he received a hard blow in the small of the back from a pitched ball, and seemed to feel it until he resumed pitching. He was forced by Gilbert, who scored on a hit, a putout and an error. In the eighth Foley led off with a safe hit, Gilbert followed suit, Reilley was hit, and then Shires smashed a hard bounder out to the centre fielder and two runs were in. A hit and an error gave Manchester a life in the eighth, but they could not push a run across the plate.

Umpire John Hunt, late with the National League, made his re-appearance as an umpire, and everybody was glad to see him. He was as usual first class in his decisions. The score:

Portland, 11; Pawtucket, 9.

Portland, Me., June 29.—Portland defeated Pawtucket in a see-saw game today, which was well played on both sides. The visitors earned four runs off Miller in the first inning and got at him again rather viciously in the sixth, when he was replaced by McLeod. The home team batted Callahan freely at times, Newenham of Colby College played right field for Portland and his batting was a considerable factor in the victory of the home team. Attendance, 500. Score:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Portland,	0	2	2	1	3	0	3	0	x	—11
Pawtucket,	4	1	0	0	0	3	1	0	0	—9

Hits—Portland, 12; Pawtucket, 13. Errors—Portland, 2; Pawtucket, 4. Batteries—Miller, McLeod and Tori; Callahan and Curtis.

Brockton, 7; Taunton, 1.

Brockton, Mass., June 29.—Right fielder Gauley pitched a fine game today, and the re-enforced Tauntons were easy. A feature of the game was Bernard's four-base hit over the right-field fence. Attendance, 350. Score:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Brockton,	1	1	1	0	0	1	3	0	x	—7

Hits—Brockton, 7; Taunton, 10. Errors—Brockton, 3; Taunton, 4. Batteries—Gauley and F. C. Holmes; Smith, Mahoney and Holmes.

The Newports have won six of the last seven games, three of the victories being shut-outs for the opposing team, and in each case the score was 3 to 0. Gallagher pitched in the shut-out against Taunton, and Foley in those against Pawtucket and Manchester. All the league clubs except the Brocktons shared in the defeats of the last week to the Newports, and Pawtucket won the only game against them. In these games the Newports made 35 runs to their opponents' 17, 14 errors to their opponents' 22, and 57 hits to their opponents' 50.

There are now three good umpires in the New England league—Hunt, Kelley and "Bobby" Moore.

The Newports will play three games at home next week.

NEW COMMANDER AT THE TRAINING STATION.

The formal transfer of the command of the Naval Training Station from Captain John McGowan to Commander John J. Hunker was made yesterday afternoon, with as little display as the necessities of the occasion permitted. Captain McGowan will go to New York in a few days, preparatory to sailing for Manila to assume command of monitor Monterey. Mrs. McGowan and Miss McGowan have taken rooms in this city. Captain McGowan has been in command of the Training Station since December 15, 1896, and his administration of the Station has been very acceptable to the department.

Commander Hunker, who succeeds him, is a well known officer and as commander of training ship Annapolis has had considerable experience with naval apprentices. He served on the Annapolis during the war with Spain and in consideration of his excellent record was, when his sea service had expired, given a choice of shore duty and selected the Training Station. With the increase in the number of apprentices now authorized by law, and the construction of the new barracks, the command will be of greater importance than it has been heretofore, and Commander Hunker has been appointed with a full knowledge by the Navy Department of his capabilities.

THE PROTECTION OF BIRDS.

Yesterday Secretary of State Bennett met in Providence the recently appointed commissioners of birds, and swore them into office. The state commissioners are Dr. T. H. Peckham, Dr. E. R. Lewis, Mr. Thomas W. Penney, Mr. William H. Thayer, and Mr. A. O'D. Taylor of this city. The board immediately organized by holding a meeting in the Athletic Club rooms, and selected Dr. Peckham of Providence as chairman, and Mr. T. W. Penney of Olneyville as treasurer and secretary.

The commissioners intend making arrangements for the early circulation of digests or summaries of the Rhode Island laws regarding the killing of birds in specified months, if required for the table. The existing laws already contain a prohibition against killing songbirds and such birds as subsist entirely on insects.

The object of this new commission is not merely to prevent the snaring and capture of so-called game birds during forbidden months, or their sale during these months. It has a much wider scope. It aims at the conservation of the smaller native birds, at diffusing sentiments of consideration and kindness for all feathered visitors, and at the extinction of that barbaric habit which finds pleasure in slaying every wild bird that comes with the so-called sportsman's range.

The circulating of correct knowledge as to what birds are in no way injurious to crops, as to what birds are distinctly beneficial to the farmer, and as to those of mixed habits of life, whose petty depredations are but a trifle compared with the good they do, will, it is assumed, come fairly within the duties of the commissioners. They have an educational basis to lay in the first place.

The commissioner for the county of Newport, Mr. A. O'D. Taylor, has a recognized position as a naturalist, and particularly in the department of ornithology, which specially qualifies him for the position. The other four members are also known as much interested in questions connected with the protection of birds, and all are of local influence in the counties which they represent.

Decidedly beneficial results may be looked for, through the establishment of this board of state officials, who draw no salary for their labors but agree to aid the state so far as in them lies in a direction which inculcates a sympathy for the lives and preservation of the feathered denizens of the wood, the plain and the seashore. This is a sympathy which is unknown by savage races, but is becoming eminently characteristic of those nations which are in the forefront of civilization.

The establishment of this commission will render unnecessary the appointment of bird constables by municipalities in Rhode Island, for the commissioner for each county has the power to appoint deputy commissioners in the various townships in his county, if he thinks such deputies advisable.

ALFRED GYNNE VANDERBILT.

The graduating of Mr. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt from Yale was an event which was of much interest not only to the personal friends of the Vanderbilt family but to the general public. This second son of Mr. Cornelius Vanderbilt seems to have inherited many of the characteristics of his father. Although yet very young, he has shown much aptitude for executive work. He is simple in his tastes and has not in any way evinced the disposition which makes more than one of these millionaires objectionable. In other words, he is not spoiled, and nowadays, when the very wealthy families of this country live in almost as much publicity as royal personages, this means a great deal. The plan has not been abandoned of a trip around the world, and Mr. Vanderbilt, with Mr. Whitehouse and Mr. Iselin, may set out during the month of August.—[New York Times.

RAINFALL WELCOME.

Of Great Benefit to the Water Supply, Especially in Jamestown.

The rain which has fallen during the past few days, while it has not so far increased the supply of water in the ponds of the Newport Water Works, has helped greatly by reducing the consumption for watering purposes. This was a very material drain on the supply, but it caused no uneasiness in Newport, where there is an ample quantity of water for the season.

Over in Jamestown, however, there was considerable guessing, as there was only about 20 days' supply on hand when the rain came, and it was found necessary to stop the use of water for lawns, street-sprinkling, etc. The rain, besides lessening the consumption there, has added enough water to last several days longer. The land owned by Mr. T. Carr Watson, where experiments have recently been made in sinking wells, has been purchased by the Jamestown Water Company, and Wednesday a gang of men started digging wells. It rained so hard, however, that it was decided to take a vacation. It is thought that sufficient good water can be secured from the proposed wells to supply Jamestown without depending on the present sources.

The consumption of water at Jamestown is four or five times as great as it was calculated would be used for years, when the water works were put in, and they were put in with the knowledge of how much Newport was consuming under almost similar conditions. At present Newport is using about 4,000,000 gallons a day, or more than an ordinary city with manufactures and twice the population would require.

The difficulty about supplying the Hulidon Hill houses has been overcome. When the new pumping station was started on Harrison avenue the pump did such vigorous service that the boiler was thought to be insufficient, and yet the results on top of the hill were very meagre. It became evident that there was a leak somewhere, and a careful search was instituted. Fort Adams was at first suspected, but proved an alibi, on trial. Then skirmishers looked about, and finally Mr. Nuss, gardener on the White place, gave a tip that proved valuable. In a low place in the road an excavation was made, and within a few feet the leak was discovered. At this point the water pipe passes just over an old conduit, and it was there that a hole was found in the pipe. The water dropped into the conduit and made its escape, and the faster the pump worked the faster the leak leaked. It does not leak any longer, and the pump and boiler are amply able to supply all the water needed.

BROOKLYN TO CELEBRATE SANTIAGO DAY AT NEW YORK.

A Washington despatch says: It was reported Thursday that cruiser Brooklyn, which has just left the hands of workmen engaged in repairing the injuries she received by striking a sunken hulk in New York harbor May 30, had been ordered to leave the Brooklyn yard July 2 and rejoin the North Atlantic squadron at Newport. Secretary Long said, however, that the Brooklyn would be permitted to remain at the yard over July 3 in order that her men might carry out a plan to hold a shore picnic there on that day in celebration of the Santiago victory. It is understood that Admiral Schley will be present at the officers' dinner on board the Brooklyn on the anniversary of the battle.

FUNERAL OF A SPANISH WAR VETERAN.

The funeral of Private A. L. Walsh of the marine guard of battleship Indiana took place yesterday afternoon from the naval hospital at Coaster's Harbor island. Funeral services were conducted at the hospital by Chaplain Clark of the Essex, assisted by Rev. Father Deady of St. Joseph's Church, and were attended by Captain Taylor and other officers and a company of blue-jackets and a detachment of marines from the battleship. Following this service the body, covered with the Stars and Stripes, was escorted by the detachment from the Indiana and the Naval Training Station band to the City cemetery, where the marines fired three volleys over the grave.

Private Walsh was a veteran of the Spanish war and a participant in the battle with Admiral Cervera's fleet off Santiago, and had also served in the British navy. He had several relatives residing in Newport.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

—William P. Sheffield, Jr., has been appointed counsel for the town of Tiverton for the ensuing year.

—Professor Charles A. Pitkin of Thayer Academy, South Braintree, Mass., is in town for the summer, as usual.

—H. L. Dyer has rented store No. 4 in Travers block to Jenissati Bros., dealers in Oriental goods, etc., for the season.

—John Gray, who built the first locomotive which the Manchester shops turned out to work between Boston and Newport, died Wednesday.

—Captain C. D. Sigsbee, U. S. N., and Mrs. Sigsbee left this morning for Gloucester, Mass., where Mrs. Sigsbee and family will be located during the summer.

—Secretary Long yesterday signed an order designating Captain H. C. Taylor of battleship Indiana to command the North Atlantic squadron during Admiral Sampson's leave of absence.

—The Fourth of July committee will hold a meeting this evening to learn if any boat crews are to participate in the aquatic regatta and to make arrangements for the city's celebration. It looks a good deal as though some of the crews were afraid to race, but little can be told from street talk.

—It is understood that Mr. and Mrs. George W. Vanderbilt and Vicomte and Vicomtesse d'Osmoy, the latter of whom were recently married in Paris, will soon leave France for this country and will be entertained by Mr. and Mrs. John Nicholas Brown at the Fearing cottage in this city, by Rev. and Mrs. George Grenville Merrill at Tuxedo, and by Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Dresser at Oyster Bay.

Care of the Eyes.

Avoid sudden changes from dark to brilliant light, avoid the use of stimulants and drugs which affect the nervous system, avoid reading when lying down or when mentally or physically exhausted. When the eyes feel tired rest them by looking at objects at a long distance. Do not depend on your own judgment in selecting spectacles, but consult an experienced optician. You will find our Mr. Rema will tell you whether you need glasses and the proper kind required. We do this free of charge.
